DESIGNS CHMA BUTTON

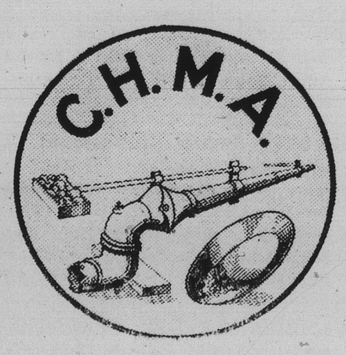
Mrs. Kittie Kimball Praised By Congressman Englebright For Her CHMA Button Design

Mrs. Kittie Kimball is receiving the praise of friends and members of the California Hydraulic Mining Association for her excellent design of a button to be used as an emblem of the association.

The buttons are now obtainable through Secretary W. W. Esterly of the association. Hydraulic operators who desire buttons made from their own gold can make arrangements with Secretary Esterly.

At a recent meeting of the hydraulic association Mrs. Kimball was presented with a pin by President George Hallock in behalf of the association members. The button was made from the same gold, obtained from 20 hydraulic mines, from which Congressman Harry L. Englebright's life membership CHMA pin was made.

Mrs. Kimball has received a letter from Congressman Englebright congratulating her upon the button she has designed.



Mrs. Kitty Kimball of this city, shown above, has received praise from Congressman Harry L. Englebright and scores of friends for the emblem she has designed for the California Hydraulic Mining Association. The emblem design is shown at the right. Many of the hydraulic mining operators will have buttons made from the gold in their own mines.

Compliments Mrs. Kimball

"Permit me to compliment you on the cleverness of the design and the same is typical and suggestive of the hydraulic mining industry," wrote Englebright.

"The California Hydraulic Miners Association is rendering a most valuable service in advancing all activities in connection with hydraulic mining" Englebright continued, and is proving of great value in the advancement of gold mining in general, in California.

"I know of the great interest that you have taken in the organization, and of your every effort to advance the hydraulic mining industry and the construction of the hydraulic mining dams."

Is Mine Firm President

Mrs. Kimball is president of the Reliance Placer and Quartz Mining Company. She has taken an active part in the affairs of the CHMA since it was organized several years ago and her proposal of a button as an emblem of the organization was received with acclaim by the members. She was authorized to design a button. The design was submitted to the association membership, given immediate approval and the making of the button authorized.

Mrs. Kimball is one of the few mining operators in California. She annually spends several months at the Reliance Mines in doing development work.

Mrs. Kimball's Story

Following is her story on the designing of the CHMA button:

"In 1938 I could see where the CHMA should have a button. The next thing to decide was the type of monitor should be chosen for the button.

"I went to see R. R. Goyne to see if he had pictures of monitors. He showed me several. Then H. P. Davis showed me the pictures of others, all different in style and type.

"I took all the parts of these, and separated them and made a monitor that could be put on a button. This little monitor was so much like one operated at the You Bet Mine in the early 60's that one old time hydraulic miner thought that I had copied it, as it is still on the You Bet property."

Chamber Secretary States Trade At Home Need Is Being Realized By Shoppers In Nevada City-Grass Valley

COMPARISON OF PRICES OF GOODS OBTAINABLE IN NEVADA COUNTY WITH THOSE IN LARGE CITIES REVEAL THEY ARE LOWER IN MANY INSTANCES

BY H. F. SOFGE

Encouraging reports from various businessmen reveal the fact that the trade at home campaign is gaining enthusiasm as each day passes.

People are beginning to realize trading at home is the most logical thing to do. It is the only way to build up good local conditions, lower your tax rate and eventually make your community an even better place in which to live.

A comparison of prices of staple goods in Nevada County, as compared with those in larger cities reveals, believe it or not, that prices are lower in many instances.

MERCHANTS CO-OPERATE

Our merchants, realizing that high prices drive away trade, keep their prices down and never ask more than a reasonable profit on their investment. A glance at the recent "Dollar Day" bargains will convince the "Doubting Thomasses" of that assertion. An analysis of any city's prosperity will show that the businessmen are awake to the fact the buying public thoroughly understands values and are ready to spend their money when the price of an article is balanced by its value. It does not take a super-salesman to sell coffee, tea, sugar, or any of the thousand and one articles so necessary for our meals, provided the price is reasonable. These goods are to be found on the shelves of every grocery store in Nevada City, so it is not necessary to talk at any length about them.

DIVERSIFIED STOCK ADVISED

On the other hand it is possible a prospective customer may desire something more than just the necessary items, such as the above, and if his merchant carries them, well and good, he makes all his purchases in the one store but, if he cannot get what he wants at this particular place, then he, and incidentally, his trade, goes where he can get the desired articles. The logical thing to do is to carry as diversified stock as possible for the money invested.

The best way to keep trade at home is to have what that trade wants. By doing that you have hurdled the first obstruction. There is an old saying that competition is the life of trade. That may be true, but it is equally true that diversity of articles in any business will build up trade.

SUGGESTS REMEDY

We hear on every side, not only in Nevada City, but in other cities, that people do not trade in their home town but prefer to go to other towns to make their purchases. If you please, there is a logical reason for this. They are unable to purchase what they want here, so the result is they make their purchases elsewhere, even the articles they could buy here are bought out of town. The remedy for this unforaunate state of affairs is too obvious to merit discussion.

Let's get down to brass tacks and admit that we talk a lot about the weather but we don't do anything about it.

Nevada County is a good place in which to live, it's a good place in which to trade. We can make it a better place all around if we will only spend our money here, thereby enabling our merchants to so expend their stocks they can carry practically everything the purchaser may desire.

COOPERATION URGED

Cooperate in the "Spend Your Money at Home" campaign and back it up by your own participation. You will be surprised to note how quickly business will improve. And last, but not least, by the time you go to another town purchase merchandise, figuring gas, oil, lunch and wear on your machine and tires, you will find you have paid much more for the same quality of goods than you would have paid right here at home—and you have given your home merchant another shove down the hill of depression.

Rose to the vacancy on the auditing committee.

Four Men Sentenced In Auburn on Xmas Tree Counts

Fines of $10 each were levied on George W. Kidd; J. M. West, and Howard H. Greser of Santa Anna, California, and James C. Wells of Costa Mesa by Justice of the Peace P. M. Smith of Auburn, for transporting Christmas trees without permit, according to forest service officials at Nevada City. The men were apprehended by forest service law enforcement officer L. B. Hodges and J. D. Rafferty on December 3 with a load of trees cut at Iowa Hill, and appeared in Judge Smith's court on December 4. Forest officers call attention to the new state law requiring notarized permits from the owner of the land from which the Christmas trees are cut before they can be transported over public highways. One copy of this permit is required to be delivered to the constable in the county in which trees are cut, and one to the district ranger or to the state forest ranger in case of land outside the national forest.

Happy Yuletide Season

There is no reason why all of us in Nevada County should not have the greatest Christmas of our lives.

Most of us have steady jobs. Considering everything, our wages are above average and we are living in one of the finest climatic areas in the world.

But at Christmas we not only look toward our own happiness—we like to see others happy, too.

Unfortunately, but true, there are some in Nevada County who will not enjoy a happy Christmas unless they receive help. It is up to the ones who have to give. It need not be much and there are various ways of giving.

Perhaps you have old or discarded toys in your home. If so, why not take them to the City Hall in Nevada City or the American Legion Hall in Grass Valley. There the toys will be rebuilt and repainted to look like new. As a result of your thoughtfulness some poor child will be happy Christmas Day. Do you see how little it takes? And who wants to see a child disappointed on the one of all days in the year?

There are other organizations in the two cities which make special efforts to assure unfortunates a joyful Christmas. One is the Grass Relief Society, which annually holds a Donation Day on the Friday before Christmas in Grass Valley, to obtain food, clothing, fuel and toys for the poor.

Charitable enterprises of such a nature are helpful in the distribution of Christmas cheer to the needy and should be encouraged.

Let's all pitch in and see that every one in Nevada County is happy Christmas Day. We cannot do much about the suffering in Europe but we can do something to assure a joyful Yuletide for all in Nevada County.

Let's also not forget our merchants. We can make them happy by doing our Christmas shopping in their stores and, after all, why shouldn't we? They are our neighbors, our friends and our best supporters in time of need.

Swing Back To Small Towns Urged

According to Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former president of Antioch College and former TVA chairman, the social problems of today can be solved partially by a new development of genuine community life.

He said the time is ripe for a swing back to the small towns, where, if dormant opportunities are utilized by residents, a redistribution of wealth, which now is concentrated in New York and Chicago, can be made.

Dr. Morgan said most so called communities are "not communities but mere groups of dwellings and buildings with no common interest to bind those that live in them into a community group."

He said small communities have become despised and neglected, "with their young people moving away to lose themselves in the maelstrom of the cities as soon as they approach maturity."

"In many cases the young people have been justified," he said, "as they have not been given the opportunity to satisfy their natural ambition in their home towns or been given the vision to see the possibilites that exist in almost any community."

Once the rural youth reaches the city, Dr. Morgan said, he often is unhappy. He said the natural desire to "belong", sends youths to clubs, labor unions and other places in which he may find social companionship.

From Dr. Morgan's statements even though the life in a "big city" is appealing, often it leads to greater hardships and unhappiness than small community life.

We also believe Dr. Morgan "has something" in his proposal for a new development of genuine community life in the smaller towns.

Christmas Broadcast From Mine Depths

Nevada County will gain nationwide publicity through a unique broadcast Christmas Day from the 2,400 foot level at the Idaho-Maryland Mine.

The members of the board of supervisors of this county, acting in their capacity as the Nevada County Development Association, are to be commended by the citizenry for making this broadcast possible.

The National Broadcasting Company agreed to conduct the half hour underground program providing certain expenses were met. To meet these expenses the Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce appealed to the development association.

After listening to the advantages to this county of the broadcast from a publicity standpoint, the development board appropriated the necessary $200. One hundred dollars of that amount will be returned to the county by the Lindgren and Swinerton Construction firm, contractors which built the courthouse here. Paul Young, representative of the firm, volunteered to pay the $100 after the idea was presented to the board.

The entire United States will join with Nevada County in tuning in on the underground broadcast Christmas Day. The California-Cornish Gold Mine Singers and the Christmas Carolers of Grass Valley combined will sing Yuletide songs.

MAN DEAD FOR MONTH AT CAB'N ON YUBA RIVER

Miners on the Yuba River in the Upper Narrows Dam area shunned Samuel Foster, 65, because of his Communistic tendencies and his attempts to convert every one in that area to his belief.

So when Foster died of natural causes, it was more than a month before his body was discovered.

Foster was found by H. H. Gould, an Indian, who was the closest neighbor of the deceased. Gould told Coroner A. M. Holmes and Deputy Coroner William James that he was a "red blooded American" and that no one went near Foster because he was a Communist.

Find Red Literature

In Foster's cabin the officers found a suitcase full of Communistic literature. Coroner Holmes said Foster was last seen alive the latter part of October in Smartville, where he sold some gold and bonght groceries.

Foster was believed to have been a native of Germany. The coroner's office reports he formerly resided in Arizona. Burial of Foster was conducted under the direction of the Holmes Funeral Home.

MACHINERY PASSES THROUGH

Several truckloads of mining machinery, reportedly for the Shovel Placers operations at Columbia Hill, passed through Nevada City during the past few days.

SHOTS ATTRACT ATTENTION

Undersheriff William D. Woods was called to the Five Mile House Friday night by a report several shots were fired in the vicinity.

An investigation failed to reveal anything and Woods assumed deer spotlight hunters may have been active.

"KEEP YOUR MONEY AT HOME"

Trade in Nevada County

You are proud of Nevada County, aren't you?

You like to hear people say that Nevada County is one of the liveliest spots in Northern California, don't you?

You like to feel that you live in a wide-awake town, a town that is up and going all the time, don't you?

Well, did you ever stop and think about the kind of a town we would have here if there were no stores, no busy streets, no keen-eyed, alert businessmen?

If you haven't, just give it one minute's thought, and you will decide that it would be a pretty poor sort of a place to live in—in fact, it wouldn't be a town at all—would it?

But that's just what would happen if everybody did his buying from a catalogue or in Sacramento or San Francisco. We have a great, fine productive country all around us.

We are redeeming acres that once were almost entirely non-productive. We are the center of a wonderful district.

And we have built a district here that we are proud of, a district that ought to go on and on until it becomes one of the really big interior sections of the state.

But we are going to do that only by working together.

We can't do it if we spend our money in Chicago or San Francisco.

We have as wide-awake business men as will be found anywhere.

We have stores with as fine stocks of merchandise as will be found in towns three times as large.

Why not patronize those men and those stores?

Why send away for something simply because it sounds a little bit cheaper in the catalogues only to find out that it isn't what you want whenyouget it, with no redress of any kind once they have your money?

That's a poor way to build up the town in which you live.

What interest has the Chicago or San Francisco house in you, beyond trying to get you to spend your money with it.

None at all!

But the Nevada City and Grass Valley man is your friend and neighbor.

When returns are slow, when times are a little bit bad, when sickness interferes with the pay envelope, it isn't the outside businessman that eases things along for you, is it?

Not by a long shot.

It is your Nevada City and Grass Valley business man, right here in this area, who carries you along until you get the chance to stand on your feet again.

And there's more than sentiment in this trade-at-home question.

The big factor is "Value Received" enters into it just as thoroughly.

You know just what you are getting when you get it here.

You can see it and handle it and taste it and even then, after you get it home and find you don't want it, you can take it back and get what you do want.

That's of some importance isn't it?

And when you get right down to bedrock, there's precious little, if any, difference in prices.

Just look these facts in the face, and if by any chance you have been in the habit of sending your hard-earned money out of town just turn over a new leaf and begin patronizing your friends and neighbors right here in Nevada City and Grass Valley.

Here are the names of some of them. They are all wide-awake, energetic, hustling business men. You can't make any mistake when you deal with them. They don't want you to make any mistake. They want your business and expect to deserve it only by making it worth while for you to do business with them.

Maria Ivey Final Rites Held Today

Burial of Mother of Dr. Ivey Was In Odd Fellows Cemetery Here

Funeral services were held at 11 a. m. today in the Andrews and Greilich funeral chapel in Sacramento for Mrs. Maria Richards Ivey, 88, mother of Dr. and City Councilman John R. Ivey of this city.

Mrs. Ivey died Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Ruiter, in Sacramento. Following the funeral rites in Sacramento the body was taken to the Odd Fellows Cemetery here. Interment in the family plot was under the auspices of the Neva Rebekah Lodge.

Lodge Charter Member

The deceased was the last charter member of the Neva Rebekah Lodge of this city, receiving her fifty year pin from the lodge five years ago.

Mrs. Ivey was a native of England. She came to the United States as a child and to California sixty four years ago. For the past thirty years she had been residing in Sacramento.

Well Known Here

The deceased was well known in this city, where she was a frequent visitor after leaving for Sacramento to make her home.

Besides Dr. Ivey and Mrs. Ruiter, Mrs. Ivey leaves another son, Albert Ivey of Nevada City; a brother, John C. Richards of Portola and five grandchildren including Ivey Adelle Ruiter, teacher in the Nevada City High School.

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

This issue of the Nugget carries more advertising than any edition in the last three years. Why? Because the merchants of Nevada City and Grass Valley are determined to do their part in keeping Nevada County money at home. This year their stocks are unusually large. Patrons have a wide selection in all kinds of merchandise, both as regards price and excellence of quality. "We the people" of Nevada County should this Christmas season highly resolve, in view of all the advantages derived from trading at home with our neighbors and friends, the merchants, to do our part in keeping our dollars at home and at work here.

The dollar spent at home is a busy dollar. A grocery bill, for instance, is paid. The grocer goes to his neighbor and puts in a supply of winter fuel. The fuel dealer needs new winter clothing. He goes to his neighbor, the clothing merchant, and buys himself a brand new outfit for Christmas. Relatives are coming from the East. He wants to boast that the well tailored outfit he wears, came from his own home town merchant. The clothing merchant puts his profits into a lot, and has plans drawn for a new home. The new home starts a building cycle in the neighborhood. That busy dollar is traveling at 60 miles an hour and

Loma Rica Rancho Publicizes Nevada County

MacBoyle's Horse Farm Draws Many Visitors To This Area

Eventually, it is possible the Loma Rica Rancho and its race horse stables will be second to the gold mining industry in publicizing Nevada County.

The Loma Rica Rancho is owned by Errol MacBoyle of the Idaho-Marylind Mines Corporation and persons who know whereof they speak believe his method of developing race horses will within a few years find his animals competing and possibly winning the Kentucky Derby and other annual important horse races.

Spending Money Wisely

MacBoyle is not rushing into the breeding of horses to grab honors by a photo finish. He is spending much money, but wisely, to develop winners of the Kentucky and Santa Anita Derbies which are the world's famous three year old events. Horses go from those races into the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. Stagehand, for instance, won the $50,000 in the Santa Anita Derby and a few days later took the $100,000 handicap from Seabiscuit.

The products of MacBoyle's enterprise have been making good showings on California tracks. From now on do not be surprised if you hear of a jockey in a gold blouse and white cap, the Loma Rica colors, streaking across the finish line in front of the field in any of the big classics.

Barns Like Palaces

MacBoyle spent $50,000 on two barns placed upon a knoll, overlooking the famous Idaho-Maryland Mine, surrounded by more than twenty paddocks in which sprinkling systems play upon Kentucky blue grass and there are all kinds of imported food for the making of turf champions.

There are 250 acres devoted to the horse rancho which is 2,670 feet above sea level. That altitude is supposed to make for horses strong both in lung capacity and in legs.

The barns themselves might almost be termed palaces. Each stall is 15 by 15 feet and panelled in beautiful hardwood. In addition to a long corridor through the center of each buliding there is a door from each stall leading directly outdoors. This is to provide two exits in case of fire. At the far end of each barn is a large indoor paddock where the young horses get their first feel of a man on their back.

Have Maternity Wards

Each barn has a maternity ward which make visitors gasp in wonderment. All surgical and medical equipment that could be found in a horse hospital is at hand. Johnny Semas, superinendent of the farm, has his sleeping quarters next to the ward and merely has to open a small door from his bed to see how the mother and offspring are faring during the night.

Thoroughbreds Are Expected To Eventually Give Locality Fame

Each stall has a sunlamp to make sure all the youngsters get their vitamins in all kinds of weather. And each one gets cod liver oil and other things that go to make health and speed.

In stud are two formerly well known runners. Time Supply, winner of about $150,000 in his career on the tracks, is one. Time Supply was second in the $100,000 Santa nita Handicap when Glenn Wright did a rodeo ride on Top Row to win.

Microphone, winner of about $40,000, is another daddy of the horses which MacBoyle as well as every resident in Nevada County, hope some day will bring fame to them and this area.

The horses now being trained are from a splendid collection of mares carrying blue blood lines of some of the most famous horses that have ever raced on the American turf.

Nevada County has a right to be proud of the Loma Rica Rancho. Its fame is spreading and visitors from all parts of the United States come to this county just to see the ranch and its horses.

Trade At Home Campaign Meets With Success; Final Announcement Of Series On Why You Should Spend Money At Home In This Issue

With this issue of The Nugget, the final of a series of four announcements setting forth reasons why your money should be spent in Nevada County is presented.

The issues containing the Trade At Home announcements not only went to the regular subscribers but approximately 3,000 extra copies were printed for distribution throughout the county.

From reports coming into this office, the campaign to Keep Money in Nevada County, is a success. Many were enlightened by the statements of facts in the presentation of the businessmen's side of Trade At Home vs. Trade Away From Home.

Important Announcement

The final announcement, on Page 12 of this issue should be read carefully. It is probably he most important of the series.

Your local businessmen are working for a greater and better Nevada City and Grass Valley. There are many reasons why you should trade at home.

GRASS VALLEY WOMAN ATTEMPT TO END LIFE

Mrs. F. B. Thompson, 34, Grass Valley woman, was recovering "satisfactorily" today at the Landis-Lang Clinic in Grass Valley from the effects of gas fumes. Police officers said Mrs. Thompson turned on the gas at her home in a suicide attempt yesterday.

Mrs. Thompson was discovered in her gas-filled kitchen by her brother-in-law. After turning the gas off he went in search of help. When he returned he found Mrs. Thompson had again turned on the gas and was unconscious.

The woman was taken to the clinic and immediate attention by Dr. Richard P. Landis saved her life.

The police report Mrs. Thompson had been despondent. Besides her husband she has two children by a former marriage.

Tex Straw Will Eat Buffalo Meat Christmas Instead of Rattlesnake

William (Tex) Straw, grizzled prospector of Nevada City, whose most famous characteristic is that he eats rattlesnake meat at every opportunity, will have something new for Christmas.

Tex has sent an order to a friend in Wyoming for several pounds of buffalo meat. It costs $2 a pound but Tex says it is worth every cent.

Whenever anyone kills rattlesnakes in this vicinity the reptile invariably ends in the hands of Tex. During the winter Tex keeps a supply of canned rattlesnake meat in his cabin.

Tex is caretaker for the Valley Gold Mine, Inc., properties in Willow Valley.

Visits In Smartville—

Dennis Coughlan of this city, and Dennis, Jr., visited at the Coughlan ranch in Smartville yesterday.

NEW LEAGUE VICE-PRESIDENT WAS FORMER BRONCO-BUSTER

Sam Scoville, well known Grass Valley-Nevada City mine hoistman, who was elected vice president of the Mine Workers Protective League at Thursday's election, was formerly a champion bonco-buster.

Scoville admits operating a hoist is tame compared to riding the hurricane deck of a bucking horse. The new league vice president is hoistman at the Spring Hill Mine.

"A man can't break horses all his life, though," Scoville says, so he resorted to mining as an occupation.

It was in 1910 at Cheyenne, Wyo., that Scoville was adjudged the champion bronco-buster of the United States. In 1906, he tied with Hugh Clark for the championship. In 1906, 1907, 1908, and 1909 he was either second or third.

During the many years Scoville entered the rodeo contests he was employed at various ranches in Wyoming breaking horses. In 1910 when he won the championship for the second time, he was working for the Wyoming Lumber and Supply Company in Cheyenne.

Toured With Circus

Scoville has the honor of being one of the four men who took first place in the bronco-busting contest more than once. Following his victory in 1910 he toured the United States with a wild west circus.

Scoville said he never was much of a cowboy. Instead of riding the range he had to stay at the ranch to break horses.

The new protective league vice president has resided in Nevada County for the past eleven years. He formerly worked at You Bet.

As we prepare to do our Christmas shopping let us remember these things:

Our home merchants can duplicate the prices made by any responsible concern anywhere on goods of equal quality, in the same quantities and on the same basis of delivery and payment.

We can examine your purchases in the home stores and be assured of satisfaction before investing your money.

Our home merchants are always ready and willing to make right any error or any defective article purchased.

Our home merchants help support, through direct and indirect taxation, our schools, churches and other public institutions.

Our home merchants are our good friends, ever ready to extend a helping hand in time of need.

If this community is good enough for us to live in and make our money in, 'tis good enough to spend our money in.

Every dollar kept in circulation in this county helps increase property values. Every dollar sent out of the county that could be well spent here hinders the wheels of progress and helps build up some other community at our expense.

This paper's Trade at Home series has not only received the acclaim of civic minded citizens of Grass Valley and Nevada City but other papers throughout California have adopted some of the statements and ideas for editorials to fit their local situations.

There is no reason why Nevada County should not be one of the most live and prosperous counties in the state. The last mining summary of The Nugget revealed 2,609 men were employed in Nevada County mines with a monthly payroll of $391,350.

Within the Nevada City-Grass Valley shopping area there is a population of 18,000. Things should be booming in Nevada County. And they can boom if we cooperate. Let's trade at home.

City Takes On Brilliant Appearance For Local Observance Of Yuletide

COLORED LIGHTING SYSTEM IN; CHAMBER SPEEDS DECORATING OF CITY'S STREETS

Christmas comes but once a year.

With that thought in mind, Nevada Cityans are preparing for a happy Yule season.

The streets in the business district have been decorated with colored lights. Today the decorating of the streets with evergreen boughs began.

Individual home decorating has also started.

The local chamber of commerce, under the direction of Secretary H. F. Sofge, is planning many events for the Christmas season. The completion of the plans will be made at the chamber's meeting Wednesday night.

Committee Supervises

The street decorating is being handled by a committee composed of Emmett Gallagher, Dwight Steele and Fred Garrison. This committee also supervised the stringing of the lights. Many additional strings of lights were purchased, enabling the spreading of the colored lights through the entire business district.

Dwight Steele, chairman of the chamber's committee handling the Outdoor Christmas Tree contest, reports many residents will have their outdoor evergreen trees decorated to compete for the contest prizes. Others on the tree contest committee are Gus Presley, John Anagus, Mrs. Joe Marriott and Bud Kyle.

Singing Planned

Secretary Sofge plans for the last few days of shopping to have Christmas carols sung throughout the city.

Nevada City merchants are preparing for a busy Christmas season. They have decorated their stores for the Yuletide and have the latest in merchandise for Christmas shoppers.

Local civic organizations are urging Christmas buyers to do their shopping at home, pointing out each dollar spent at home is of material benefit to the community.

The recent policy of local merchants in remaining open until 9 p. m. on Saturday and pay-day nights will continue throughout the Yule season with the probability during the final days of shopping the stores will be open until 9 p. m. every night.

QUEEN JEAN

Miss Jean Elliott, above, reigned as queen at the second annual carnival, held by the students in the Nevada City High School recently. The coronation of Queen Jean, who won the honor in a voting contest, was one of the features on the program. Jean is a senior at the high school.

GRASS VALLEY BOY DIES AT LANDIS CLINIC

Death yesterday claimed Malcolm Alden Campbell, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Campbell of Grass Valley.

The child died at the Landis-Lang Clinic one day after entering the hospital for an operation.

The father is purchasing agent for the Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation.

The funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Hooper-Weaver Mortuary in Grass Valley. Rev. Mark Pike of tne Methodist Church will officiate. Cremation at East Lawn in Sacramento will follow.

Orzalli's Entertain At Family Dinner

A family dinner was held here last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Orzalli.

Those in attendance were the host and hostess, Mrs. Emelia Orzalli, Gus Orzalli, George Falmbigl, Teresa Colombo, Mrs. Colombo, Ernest Colombo and Louis Colombo.

Grass Valley Makes Plans For Observing Of Christmas Season

The Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce has completed arrangements for many special Christmas features. The chamber supervised the decorating of the streets for the Yule season.

One of the features of Christmas plans for Grass Valley will be the annual singing of carols by the Grass Valley Carol Singers on Christmas Eve.

The carol singers will also render a half hour radio program underground at the Idaho-Maryland mine. Christmas Day.

The Grass Valley chamber will sponsor a Christmas party for the kiddies of the Grass Valley area. Candy will be distributed to the children and free shows will be held at both the Montez and Strand theatres.

EMPIRE-STAR VS. BUTLER TRIAL NOW IN THIRD WEEK HERE

Dr. John Buwalda, geology instructor at the California Institute of Technology, was on the witness stand today when the trail of the Empire-Star Mines suit against Cooley and Wallace Butler, operators of the Golden Center Mine properties, resumed here today. The proceedings are being held in the supervisor's chambers because of the Matlock trial in the superior court.

The trial, considered the most important mine litigation in this county since the Champion-Home suit of 35 years ago, is now in its third week.

Court attaches believe the trial will continue for at least another two weeks although counsel thought they could conclude the case this week.

Have New Knowledge

Counsel for the defense and Butler engineers came into court this morning armed with a new knowledge of some of the workings in dispute. They were given permission at the end of last week's proceedings to inspect underground workings at the Pennsylvania Mine.

The Empire-Star Mines in the suit against the Butlers, charges they used the facilities of the Pennsyl-

PROFESSIONAL MEN NOT EXEMPT FROM MILITARY LIFE

Invaluable Benefit Will Be Derived By Dentists and Physicians

Professional men, including lawyers, doctors and dentists—and also proprietors of one-man commercial establishments—must be considered as eligible for Selective Service training although every effort will be made to protect the welfare of the community as it is affected by their services, C. A. Dykstra, director of Selective Service announced today.

Answering numerous inquiries concerning occupational deferment of professional men, Mr. Dykstra emphasized that such cases will be passed upon by local boards in the same manner as they consider the status of other registrants. He said:

"Sacrifices Expected"

"The test is the welfare of the nation and the community. Although individual hardships should be dealt with in each case with the greatest consideration, sacrifices are expected of everyone, and the fact that a little more sacrifice is asked of some than of others is inevitable."

Status of Lawyers, Doctors, Dentists Same As All Others

Conceding that the question of deferment concerning professional men and proprietors of small commercial establishments present more definite and knotty problems, Mr. Dykstra declared:

"The hard cases arise where the community which these individuals serve have several similar services. For example, take the case of a young dentist who has just been graduated from school and has gone into debt in order to purchase the equipment necessary to his profession.

"There are several other dentists serving the same community more or less satisfactorily. The question arises —is such a person eligible for deferment by reason of his occupation?

"Obviously, a good case of disruption to the economy or society of the community cannot be made. The hardship here is not to the community, but the individual."

Director Dykstra also said that the young lawyer "who has just acquired his first two or three clients and who may find himself without these clients upon his return from training and who has no employer to look to for a return of his job is probably making a greater sacrifice than the garage mechanic whose job will be waiting for him upon his return and who has no individual clients or customers to lose."

Invaluable Experience

Insofar as young doctors or dentists are concerned, he said:

"They will very likely find themselves practicing their profession in the army, and this experience will be equivalent to practicing in a large clinic and will be of invaluable benefit to them."

In all cases of this kind the director said he believed the local boards should give the registrants ample time to "wind up his affairs" but added:

"It must be clearly understood that if his number has been called, he should be inducted for training if he is otherwise eligible."

Director Dykstra pointed out that where the individual is the sole qualified person serving a community "a much stronger case for deferment." could be made before the proper local board and emphasized that the local board could continue granting the deferment "until such time as the community will not be completely deprived of such service."

Christmas Seals Obtainable At Two Drug Stores In N. C.

Christmas Seals are now obtainable at the Harris and Dickerman Drug Stores in Nevada City and various places throughout Grass Valley.

These who were missed in the mailing of Christmas Seals recently are asked to obtain theirs at the stores where they are on sale. Those who desire more than the one sheet of seals which were mailed, can secure them also from the stores or by calling Mrs. E. T. Bonner, seal sale chairman, in Nevada City.

3,000 Sheets Mailed

Three thousand envelopes containing the seals, with return envelopes for the $1, were sent to Nevada Countyans. The letter sent with the Christmas Seals pointed out the following was made possible in Nevada County by the sale of the seals.

1,340 girls and boys and contacts were tested.

500 chest X-rays were taken of positive reactors.

600 home calls on families of positive reactors were made to track down the source of infection. Help and advice were given to parents of reactors.

Hundreds of people received a better knowledge of tuberculosis and how to safeguard themselves against this disease.

Mann Heads Association

The Nevada County Tuberculosis Association, of which John R. Mann is president, is in charge of the seal sale. Superior Judge George L. Jones of this city is vice president; Bernice Glasson of Grass Valley, secretary; E. L. Dudley of Nevada City, treasurer; Dr. Harry N. March of Grass Valley, medical advisor and Mrs. Vera Ingram of Grass Valley publicity chairman.

Alfred, Charles and Joseph McCall of Del Paso Heights were fined $10 each in the court of Judge Geo. Gildersleeve in Nevada City for cutting Christmas trees without proper permits, according to forest officers at Nevada City. The men had been warned by District Ranger John Hodgson at Big Bend, it is reported, but secured the trees nevertheless, and were apyrehended by Nevada City police and prosecpted by Tahoe Enforcement Officers Leonard Hodges and J. D. Rafferty.

Oldest Chestnut Tree In Nevada County Is Felled by Woodman's Axe

The magnificent chestnut tree in the front yard at the E. J. Ott home on Broad Street is no more.

When a tree surgeon informed him the tree was slowly dying, Ott ordered it removed. It developed, however, the tree was strong and sturdy and gave no indication of being diseased and the Otts regret its cutting.

The tree was believed to have been the oldest chestnut tree in Nevada County. It was planted approximately 90 years ago. The tree had a spread of 65 feet and the trunk was four and one half feet in diameter.

JUST WONDERIN'

I Wonder if you'd like to hear
A little tale that's rather queer,
About a worm, which I affirm
Is true—in some particulars.
Once upon a time—
A poor worm crawled as all worms must,
Through the soft green grass and the warm brown dust;
Now this silly worm was a worrying one—afraid of almost everything.
He feared the broom, the garden tools, the old hen and chickens, the garden toad, all fishermen and all sorts and sizes of human feet.
Whether big and clumsy or neat and trim,
Feet were a constant menace to him.
One day this poor worm tired of everything mundane, so he crawled into the barn, sought out a dark corner.
And fashioned a cradle and went to bed,
Saying, "Now, thank heaven, I'm comfortably dead!"
But something kept whispering, "wings, wings." He became quite indignant.
"Stuff and nonsense," he cried with a squirm,
Who ever heard of a flying worm?"
But all of a sudden one sunny day he awoke, and sure enough there were wings on his back! He exercised them by opening and shutting them for a few moments,
Then he sailed right out throught the big barn door,
High over the sill where he'd crawled before,
And winged his way through the realms of light
In the wild and exultant joy of flight.
However his troubles were not over, a filmy cloud dimmed the light of the sun and the butterfly who had once been a worrying worm, began to fret again as foolishly as ever.
"Oh, woe is me," he moaned in pain,
"I can live but a day and it's going to rain!"
Then along came a wise old bumble bee, who comforted the butterfly by telling him that the cloud would soon melt away and convincing him that he wasn't a short lived butterfly, but a California monarch who would probably die at a ripe old age five or six months hence.
So the butterfly resumed his joyous flight, dipping, circling and darting about the long day through. He had never known such happiness before; but as the afternoon wore on and the sun slipped down the western sky, our butterfly became wing weary,—
And so at the glad day's sun down close,
He fluttered to rest in the heart of a rose.
He was just dropping off to sleep when a thought popped into his little head which caused him to open sleepy eyes and —after a moment of serious reminescence—
"Of all things I have feared," said he,
"Not a single one, ever happened to me."
I Wonder if there could possibly be an analogy between the antics of a worrying worm and the habits of any member of the human family. Probably not.
Uncle Silas says: "I worry a lot about this German, Italian and Japanese alliance, but I'm mighty glad the Greeks are on our side."

Plans Made For Powder Storage Plant

The Columbia Powder Company of Washington plans to construct in the near future a high explosive magazine near the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway about half way between Grass Valley and Marysville.

It was reported the storage plant will handle sixty carloads of powder a year or about 200,000 pounds per month. The explosives will be used mostly in the mines of Nevada, Sierra, Yuba and Plumas County.

The Church Makes History

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles by Elizabeth Cherry Pateman, wife of Rev. H. Thomas Pateman, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal Church of Nevada City, on "The Church Makes History." Additional articles will appear in future issues.)

(By Elizabeth Cherry Pateman)

"If we get through this war, and I live, this Indian system shall be reformed!" Thus wrote Abraham Lincoln to a friend after an interview with Henry Benjamin Whipple, the Episcopal Church's first Bishop of Minnesota. This fiery bishop carried his fight for the Indians, the race to which he devoted half his life, beyond all tribal agents and commissioners to the President himself. In Lincoln he found a sympathetic listener.

Bishop Whipple's education had not prepared him to drive a locomotive, but when he found himself in a parish near the Chicago railroad yards he went about his work among saloons and shops with a Bible under one arm and a railway manual under the other. This system gave him success in a parish where his friends had predicted he would starve. He was only thirty seven years old when he was unanimously elected as Bishop of Minnesota. From this time on he traveled constantly on horseback or in a wagon across the wide unbroken prairie. He carried with him simple medicines and instruments to relieve suffering, and was often accompanied by his Indian clergymen.

Under Bishop Whipple, it is said, the Episcopal Church first recognized its duty toward the Indian. After the disastrous Indian uprising of 1862, he had the problem of refugees to deal with, for western Minnesota was left desolate. He did not offer excuses for the Indian conduct in the massacre, but he did say again and again that "a nation which sowed robbery would reap a harvest of blood."

With an indomintable will this Bishop pleaded with Churchmen, legislators, and with President Lincoln himself that the Indian must have justice. Though he did not live to see the settlement of the Indian problem, he lived until 1901, several years after the last uprising in Minnesota.

GO BEAR HUNTING

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen and Deputy Carl Larsen spent yesterday hunting bear.

The fact that all of the more than 30,000,000 motor vehicles in use in America have the brake alongside the gas pedal leads to the inevitbale conclusion that the manufacturers must have been doing more than merely hinting at something.

THINKING OUT LOUD

is going places. You, who bought your groceries here in Nevada County, started that dollar on its busy business of building up your own community.

Who is chief beneficiary of the dollar spent at home? Why, the spender, of course. The dollar he spends returns again and again to his own pocket. If he is in business it fairly races back and forth between his pocket and those who receive it from him. If he is a home owner, retired perhaps from active life, that dollar goes to work building up his real estate values. The home he built a few years ago increases in value, especially the lot on which it is built.

But the dollar spent outside your own community stands about one chance in a thousand of ever returning. It rarely does any work for the community from which it was expelled by the careless indifference of the spender. We don't like to call those dollars which are spent outside our community cities hard names, but we just can't refrain from saying that the dollar that goes elsewhere is a slacker dollar. It is looking for a softer spot to go to work.

If any reader of this column will think back a few years, he will remember many a store in the two cities that were a bit old-fashioned in their general appearance and conduct. That is, the show windows were out-of-date. The merchandise was not well displayed, and worst of all, only a few merchants believed in advertising. But one by one these stodgy old stores quickened their pace. They spruced up. Brand new show windows were installed and tiled entrances. Thousands of dollars have been spent in the last five years in remodeling, painting, papering and installing modern fixtures. Nobody within driving distance of Nevada City and Grass Valley is today living in a hick community. Our merchants are competing on better than equal terms with the high rental businesses of the larger cities.

Just give our home town merchants a chance! Yes, half a chance. They'll put your dollar to work enlarging their stores, improving their service, and returning your dollar to you increased, multiplied. They depend upon their friends and neighbors, their own communities, for their living, their profit and their future. You can help them to help you, or you can cripple them by sending your dollars away. But the trouble with that is, you are the one most injured. For we are all interdependent. What one spends with another, he spends indirectly for himself and his community. The community grows and waxes prosperous by just the measure that each one of us, consulting his own enlightened self interest, if you like, spends whatever he has to spend in his own community.

ORDER AGAINST COUNTY IN EFFECT PENDING TRIAL

A restraining order preventing Nevada County from continuing work on the Lower Grass Valley Road in front of the James Snell home is in effect until Snell's suit against the county and board of supervisors is decided.

The restraining order was granted by Superior Judge George L. Jones after a two hour hearing Friday.

Snell seeks a court order preventing the county from continuing widening the road on his property and also $1,500 as damages for the work already done.

County officials and members of the local city council inspected the road project Saturday. Indications pointed to a solution of the difficulties by widening the road on the opposite side from the Snell home. If a settlement is reached the suit against the county will be dropped.

Some of the repaired toys are on display in The Nugget office window and are attracting widespread attention.

Solaro would welcome any of your children's abandoned toys. After a paint job and a little touching up they can be made to look like new and they certainly are appreciated by children who would receive nothing at Christmas otherwise.

vania Mine to dewater Golden Center workings.

Fifth Witness

Dr. Buwalda has been the fifth witness for the plaintiff since the trial began. Other witnesses were William Simkin, Fred Nobs, John R. Mann, all officials of the Empire-Star and Newmont Mining Corporation and Roy Hardy, Reno mining engineer and geologist.

Upon the completion of the plaintiff's case, the defense will attempt to refute the plaintiff claims.

Trial Similar In Many Instances To Famous Champion-Home Suit

The important mine litigation suit being heard in the superior court here has many striking similarities to the famous Champion-Home Mine litigation of thirty five years ago.

On the side of the plaintiff, the Empire-Star Mines, Ltd., is William Colby, one of the plaintiff counsel in the Champion suit. The defendants in the current action are Cooley Butler, operator of the Golden Center Mine and his son, Wallace.

The underground workings model was fashioned by Ed Uren of this city, who also thirty five years ago made the model which played an important part in the Champion-Home trial.

And on top of that, John W. O'Neill, the court reporter in the noted Champion-Home suit, is reporting the present trial but in a different capacity. He is reporting it for a local newspaper.

To avoid accidents, comments J. M. Carter, director of Motor Vehicles California deeds more drivers who watch the road ahead for approaching cars and fewer who watch it behind for approaching cops.

EXILED GERMAN EDITOR EXTOLLS FREE PRESS

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Almost any American citizen worth his salt, if asked whether he believed in a free press, would doubtless answer "yes."

Freedom of the press is part of our American heritage, just like the freedom of speech and freedom to vote for the man of our choice on election day.

But the things we get used to, unfortunately, we often fail to appreciate. A husky, healthy man seldom appreciates his good health until he has a serious illness. A farmer, accustomed to rolling hills and broad acres, seldom evaluates them properly until he has been cooped up, for a time, in a city apartment. And so it is quite probable that many of us—because we have never known anything else—have failed to place a proper value on a free press.

The writer of this column, however, happens to have a lively appreciation of a free press, born of experience over a considerable period of years. The editor of this newspaper, it might be pointed out, is under no compulsion to publish this column. In all likelihood, he often, or at least on occasion, disagrees with some of the opinions expressed in it. Yet this column of comment on farm problems—and on general problems, as they apply to the farmer and rural people—is published in approximately 40 newspapers every week in California. And its "run" has increased down through the years, even when editors sat down to their typewriters and wrote heated editorials criticizing the thoughts expressed in it. That, in this writer's opinion, is a splendid example of freedom of the press in practical operation—and this columnist, who doesn't know, except by correspondence, more than one fourth of the editors who run his copy, has good reason to be thankful for the tolerance and understanding of California publishers.

No newspaper which publishes this column asked us to write an article on freedom of the press. In fact, no newspaper which sees fit to run our weekly offerings has ever tried to tell us what to write in all the years we have been writing it. That fact, in itself, is really of considerable significance, for there is no other nation on the face of the globe, in all probability, where a columnist would be given such latitude.

A few days ago (and that's the reason for this column) we chanced to read an interview with Hans Lachmann-Mosse, former publisher of the once famous Berliner Tageblatt, but now a resident of California, on what happened to Germany's free press when Hitler came to power. And what he had to say of what happened there stirred us tremendously—because, if America is careless and unprepared there can be no doubt: IT MIGHT HAPPEN HERE!

"I can speak freely," he said. "I have no relatives in Germany, and I'm never going to return. We were a very poor country after the World War, but we were free men. Perhaps we were too free and our government too weak. Hitler saw no reason why a man in a free country shouldn't have a private army.

"I was busy in those days. Besides my three papers, I leased more than 50 magazines. Hitler was busy too. He saw no reason why a free Reich Chancellor in a weak country should not dissolve the Reichstag. Next the cabinet meeting was called. It is common knowledge that the two ministers who disappeared the next day were kidnaped by Hitler.

"I was not unprepared for the events of 1933. I saw the clouds gathering and sent my family to Switzerland and safety. Publishers meetings were called by the new leader. Next came suggestions and warnings; finally, threats. I went on about my business of publishing the truth until the day the uniformed men came. 'We are grieved that you have overlooked our suggestions,' they said, spreading the confiscation papers before me. An army automatic was at my back, so I signed.

"It wasn't a hard thing to do. To lose a 24 year business is nothing compared to losing freedom."

And then, this former German editor said: "Enough of the past. You have a glorious country here. You have freedom. I hope you appreciate it!"

Hans Lachmann-Mosse said very very complimentary things about our California newspapers. "The speed and thought your editorial writers put into their daily columns is wonderful." he said. "It's all wonderful; everything here is wonderful."

Perhaps you know why we wrote this column, dedicated to editors we have never met, who see fit to publish our writings. For in countries where the press has been regimented agriculture has been regimented. In countries where freedom of the press has died, liberty has died. Without being too sentimental we say "God Bless America." And we might add, God Save the American Free Press!

TAHOE'S CHRISTMAS TREE CONTROL WORK PRAISED BY LANDOWNERS

FOREST ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS COOPERATE WITH COUNTY OFFICIALS IN HANDLING CAMPAIGN

The intensive Christmas tree patrol being maintained by Tahoe Forest law enforcement officers in cooperation with county officials and private land owners is meeting with success, and creating favorable public opinion according to Guerdon Ellis, forest supervisor at Nevada City. Leonard Hodges, enforcement officer from the Mendocino forest at Willows, has been assisting Tahoe officer J. D. Rafferty. District Rangers have also devoted part of their time to the campaign.

Private land owners, according to Ellis, have expressed satisfaction at the comparative security they are enjoying from depredations on their land. County officials seem to be pleased at the class of enforcement. Several regular Christmas tree dealers, who cut and sell large quantities each year under regular permits, state that the enforcement campaign has done a great deal toward stabilizing the Christmas tree industry. Heretofore, fly by night poachers have cut on lands already covered by dealers' permits and very often the dealer would get the blame for promiscuous cutting for which he was not responsible. To add insults to injury the illegal trees would go on sale in competition at lower price since the poacher had paid nothing to the owner for them.

Many Trees Checked

Approximately 15,000 trees have been checked in transit by the officers, according to Ellis. In cases where there is no permit, the shipments are tied up and if the trees have been cut in trespass, the owners are prosecuted. Since the law requring notarized permits went into effect for the first time last year, courtesy warnings have been issued in eleven cases. A card record is kept and, of course, on second violation the violators will be prosecuted. Over a dozen cases have been taken into court, according to forest officers, and fines ranging from $5 to $100 each levied, depending upon the flagrancy of the case.

Ellis asks that private land owners cooperate in this campaign by being sure to issue notarized permits before permitting cutting on their land. It will probably save the person cutting them grief, for he is very likely to be picked up if an attempt is made to transport the tree without such permt. Such cooperation will help in improving conditions generally, and will result in better security against illegal cutting on privately owned lands throughout the territory.

Engagements of Two Prominent Young Women of Nevada City Becomes Known; Weddings Will Be Events of Near Future

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens today announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Raymond (Sonny) Stedger of this city and at the same time it became known that Dick Stevens, son of the Charles Stevens and brother of Margaret, is engaged to Betty Olsen, popular graduate of the Nevada City High School.

The dates for the marriages have not been revealed, but both are expected to be events of the near future.

Miss Stevens is a graduate of the Nevada City High School with the class of 1937 and is also a Mt. St. Mary's Academy graduate. Since last November she has been employed as secretary to Miles Coughlin, city judge and court reporter. Prior to that time she worked for the Pacific Coast Aggregates in Sacramento. The bride of the future is one of Nevada City's most popular and attractive young women.

Stedger is connected with his father, Robert Stedger, in the contracting business here. The younger Stedger is prominent in local athletic circles and while attending Nevada City High School was a star in basketball, football and baseball.

Stedger for a time was employed by Lindgren and Swinerton, contractors which built the new courthouse here, as a timekeeper. He left that employment to assist his father.

Betty Olsen, who will become the bride of Dick Stevens, is a graduate of the local high school with the class of 1939. During her last year of school Miss Olsen was the high school's yell leader. Her attractiveness and popularity has made her many friends in this vicinity during her comparative short residence here. Miss Olsen is employed at Cain's Auto Court store.

Stevens, like Stedger, was a star on the Nevada City High School athletic teams. He formerly was employed at the Murchie Mine but now is working at the Zeibright Mine in Bear Valley for the Empire-Star Mines, Ltd.

The engagement announcements of the couples are expected to be the incentive for many showers and parties in their honor during the holiday season.

New Member of Woodcraft Initiated

With the coming of the holiday season, the many Nevada City students attending various colleges and universities throughout the state will return to visit their families here.

POLITICAL PARADE

BY CLEM WHITAKER

Labor leaders, seeking a coalition with some other large group to increase their economic and political bargaining power, have frequently predicted eventual creation of a powerful Farmer-Labor Party in the United States which would do battle for both labor and the farmer.

There may be serious question whether that dream ever had much substance, for the union labor man and the farmer are temperamentally as far apart as the poles, although they both earn their living by the sweat of their brows.

But if, perhaps, there was a period when a strong Farmer-Labor Party was within the realm of possibility, recent and current developments seem to have blasted it into atoms—and labor and agriculture, instead of becoming allies, are now girding for a show down fight both in California and throughout the nation.

The spark that touched off the dynamite in California was the action of the State Supreme Court, some weeks ago, legalizing the secondary boycott—which would permit farm produce to be declared "hot cargo" in city markets, if harvested by non union workers. The Associated Farmers of California, at their Fresno convention, bitterly condemned that ruling, and even the Court that made it and served notive that California farmers would boycott any community whose labor organizations boycotted their products. More than that farmers will carry their battle to the Legislature with a bill to invalidate the secondary boycott—and if that fails of passage, will carry the fight to the people via initiative.

Actually, however, the secondary boycott issue is only one phase of the disagreement between labor and the farmer. The farmer whose crops must be harvested in accordance with the rules of nature, rather than labor unions, is violently opposed to the closed shop. Labor on the other hand, accuses farmers of having opposed attempts to unionize their employes.

The basic cause of the dispute goes even deeper. The union labor man has been trained to think in terms of hourly wage scales. collective bargaining and shorter work days. The farmer still pretty much of an individualist, is accustomed to working 16 to 18 hours a day during the peak harvest seasons; frequently his whole year's income is at stake on his ability to get his crop in before storms, frost or heat waves destroy it, or before the market breaks back in Chicago or New York. The farmer says when a cow has to be milked she has to be milked; the labor organizer says not if the whistle's blown. And that simple disagreement is at the bottom of the whole business.
